

Transcribed by TurboScribe. Go Unlimited to remove this message.

Hey, thanks for helping me out. I'm just doing a quick survey on how people use AI and whether we can actually trust what it says. Is it okay if I record this? I mean, it's just so I can get your answers down correctly.

Yeah, I'm totally fine with it. Okay, what do you do? I am in Deloitte. I work as a HR manager right now.

Okay, all right. So here are the questions. What do you usually use AI for in your daily life or for your studies? Yeah, mostly I use it for work tasks, email, summarizing documents, quick researches and all.

Okay, when it gives you an answer, do you usually trust it or do you feel like you have to double check everything? I don't fully trust it. I usually verify the important things. That's it.

Okay, next one. Has an AI ever told you something totally wrong, but keep acting like it was 100% correct? How did you handle that? Especially with factual data, it always gives it like that. I double check it using other sources.

Okay, does the AI ever make you doubt yourself? Like you knew the answer, but the AI was so confident that you started to think like you were the one who was wrong. You know, sometimes it presents things so confidently, which can be misleading. Okay, where do you personally draw the line between using AI for help and it becoming cheating? It becomes cheating when I stop understanding what I'm doing.

Okay, good. If you used AI for something important and it gave you the wrong information, who do you think is actually responsible? You or AI? I think responsibility must be shared, but ultimately it would be mine. Alright.

Do you think relying on AI is making it harder for us to think for ourselves or is it just a better way to learn? It can reduce independent thinking if overused. Have you ever felt forced to use AI because everyone else is using it and you don't want to fall behind? Not exactly, I would say forced, but there's some pressure for me to keep up with everyone who's using it. How do you feel when you have to do a task without any AI? Does it feel harder to focus or get started? It feels slower and requires more effort, but also more focused.

Alright, last one. Which AI platform or apps do you actually use the most? Everyone uses ChatGPT, I also use it the most and I use Gemini AI occasionally. That's all.

Thanks a lot for helping. I really appreciate your time. Never mind.

Transcribed by TurboScribe. Go Unlimited to remove this message.